COMMON PEST FACT FILE

Rats can eat through your internet connection, power supply, bite your children, your pets, destroy your gardens and contaminate water tanks. Their urine, droppings and hair are also vectors of many diseases.

It is estimated that rodents nibble away at one-fifth of global food supply every year.

An adult rat can squeeze into your home through a hole as small as the size of coin.

Rats have strong teeth that allow them to chew through glass, cinder block, wire, aluminium & lead.

Rats cause diseases like Plague, Rat-Bite Fever & Leptospirosis

CRACKING THE PEST PROBLEM

Regular pest control services can crack down from pest problems around you and yours on a timely and appropriate manner. Or they can transfer many diseases and harm your investments. Protect you and yours.

Cockroaches

Most commonly found species in and around human habitation areas are German Cockroaches, American Cockroaches and Brown Banded Cockroaches. Near-impossible to control without a trained professional, these insects are known to cause Typhoid, Hepatitis, Dysentery, and more. Cockroaches can feed on almost anything including faecal matter.

Ants

They live in colonies and are close relatives of bees and wasps. The colony size can number up to 300,000 to 500,000 and some species bite, while others can cause structural damage and can also be a nuisance.

All ant workers, soldiers and queens are females.

Cockroaches will feed on people. They feed at night when people are sleeping, consuming protein materials such as eyebrows and fingernails.
